

Reflecting on Teachers

It seems like only yesterday
When I grabbed my books for school
It seems like just this morning
When I learned the Golden Rule

As I remember years gone by
I know without hesitation
Little has surpassed the importance
Of the value of my education

Not only what I gleaned from books
Or my champion volleyball team
Or my B+ biscuits in cooking class
Or my senior prom daydream

No- even more important to me
Were the amazing folks who stood
In front of my class, gave me thumbs up,
And said “you can, you will, you could”

Teachers have heart- teachers are trained
Such positive encouragement we need
Without them our minds may be stuck without spark
Support them and thank them - we must take the lead
